ABSTRACT

The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) is the primary federal entity for collecting, analyzing, and reporting data related to education in the United States and other nations. The center's activities are designed to address high-priority education data needs; provide consistent, reliable, complete, and accurate indicators of education status and trends; and report timely, useful, and high-quality data. This document is the first of a series of annual indices to NCES Issue Briefs. Issue Briefs are short-format publications that present information on education topics of current interest. The index includes all Issue Briefs currently available from the first edition in 1992 through June 1996. Subject areas include race/ethnicity; teachers, administrators, and teaching issues; schools and schooling; student characteristics, course taking, and aspirations; educational outcomes; and international assessments. The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) is the primary federal entity for collecting, analyzing, and reporting data related to education in the United States and other nations. It fulfills a Congressional mandate to collect, collate, analyze and report full and complete statistics on the condition of education in the United States; conduct and publish reports and specialized analyses of the meaning and significance of such statistics; assist State and local education agencies in improving their statistical systems; and review and report on education activities in foreign countries.

The Center's activities are designed to address high priority education data needs; provide consistent, reliable, complete and accurate indicators of education status and trends; and, report timely, useful and high quality data to the Department, the Congress, the States, other education policy makers, practitioners, data users, and the general public.

We strive to make our products available in a variety of formats and in language that is appropriate to a variety of audiences.
